The Oak Dunin has won the European Tree of the Year 2022! The results announcement In Brussels again after 3 years break...

(Brussels 21st of March) The prestigious title of the European Tree of the Year is heading for Poland! With a historical record of 179.317 votes, the Guardian of the Białowieża Primeval Forest, oak called Dunin, left the other rivals, except one far behind. The close follower of Oak Dunin was another example of the specie, the Spanish Oak of Conxo's Banquet Forest with 168.234 votes, so the silver medal goes to Spain. The triumvirate of oaks closes on the third place the Portuguese candidate, The Big Cork Oak with 70.563 received votes.

A total of 769,212 votes were cast during the contest this year. It is again much more than the last year and we have to thank all the national organizers of the contest for their amazing campaigns attracting such an enormous attention! Unfortunately, due to the Russian invasion to Ukraine we have decided to exclude the candidate of Russian federation from the contest and not to count the votes sent to their tree. It was very hard decision as we were happy to have our Russian organizers of their Tree of the year on board, but we have decided to follow the international effort to isolate Russia even from sport and cultural events.

The final order of all tree participants as well as the video of the announcement can be found at www.treeoftheyear.org.

"We are happy to announce that our Award Ceremony can again take place in Brussels and we can meet all together, the organizers of national contests, the nominating communities as well as our tree-friends and supporters. The event will be streamed on our social media, but nothing can replace the personal meetings. We promise we will work hard to make our cities greener again and keep our landscapes healthy and resilient to climate changes. With help of local communities it is feasible!" comments Josef Jary from the Environmental Partnership Association, the contest organiser.

The Guardian of the Białowieża Primeval Forest, 400 years old Common oak called Dunin is growing at the edge of the Białowieża Primeval Forest, one of the most known lowland forests, not only in Poland but also in Europe. It has been particularly respected and admired by local people as well as tourists visiting this area of Poland, called the European Region of Wisent. It is an inspiration for many artists. It amazes in every season – during full vegetation but also when it is showing its leafless, mysteriously curved branches. The tree become a symbol of resistance for Polish people to aggression of all types – the threat of building a concrete wall throughout the Białowieża Primeval Forest attract already a great attention and in combination with approaching war conflict in Ukraine, the whole message of "protection role of the tree" got another context. The tree really become a symbol!

The ETY contest was organised by the Environmental Partnership Association in collaboration with the European Landowners' Organisation and under the auspices of MEP Ludek Niedermayer and MEP Michal Wiezik.

„The essence of this contest is not only to highlight the importance of the role of trees in our ecosystem, but to find a tree with a story. This year, the winner could not be more on the mark - The Guardian of the Białowieża Primeval Forest, one of the best-preserved forest ecosystems and the last lowland deciduous and mixed old-growth forest in Europe. I also support the decision to follow the international effort to isolate Russia and exclude them from this competition.” concluded MEP Michal Wiezik, one of the ETY patrons.

Before the grand finale, the Partnership Foundation organized the Planting4Future working conference, which addressed the European Commission's plan to plant 3 billion additional trees by 2030. Representatives of the European Commission, European Parliament, Ministries, the corporate sector and NGOs from across Europe, shared their experiences and made recommendations: How to motivate the main tree planting stakeholders to do more and how involve the whole society as much as possible in this ambitious plan. The conference was kindly supported by Škoda Auto. The recording of the conference can be found on the website treeoftheyear.org
